The airwaves at Augustana's radio station, KAUR FM 89.1, are filled with the sounds of music from around the world at 10 a.m. every Tuesday pm a show called Augie Scope.

Augie Scope was organized by KAUR General Manager Dave Scarvrough last year. The show consists of disc jockeys fluent in French, Spanish, German and Norwegian who play native music and air live interviews from persons of these respective cultures.

Augie Scope is sponsored by Augustana's International Studies Committee. The French edition of Augie Scope was recently aired by Daouda Djae, an international student from Cameroon.

"It was my first time as a disk jockey," Daouda said. "And I'm glad I got to do it. It was great." The next French show is scheduled for Dec. 13 and will feature a Christmas theme.

Jill Watson-Schneegans, French professor and disc jockey, stressed that the program boasts music variety from Quebec and Belgium, and even offers some Cajun music from Louisiana.

Since Augie Scope's beginnings last year, the show has rotated its cultural themes each week, usually providing for one show of each kind per month.

Augie Scope has proved to be a welcome addition to the KAUR programming agenda, and is scheduled to continue into next semester.

Anyone who is interested in finding out more about Augie Scope or would like to become involved in the program can contact Dave Scarvrough at KAUR radio.
